Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a microscope, and particularly to a microscope of a small size which is portable and easy to use. 2. Description of the Prior Art Most known microscopes that are used in optical laboratories have been designed so that they may be held in the hand of a researcher while allowing an operator to freely move the target object. Therefore, these microscopes are large and heavy, and there is also provided a guard or a lens protector for protecting the lens from being scratched. Accordingly, it is difficult to carry and transport the microscope. Moreover, where a microscope is left temporarily and is to be operated in a different place than where it is stored, it is troublesome and inconvenient to carry the microscope. Furthermore, where the microscope is in operation, there is the danger that the researcher will apply undue force to the lens or touch the lens, or that someone else will touch the lens. Furthermore, most microscopes have the disadvantage that they must be used with a stand or a supporting device. As a result, the size of the microscope is large, and the number of parts is increased.
